QUEBEC, Sunday, Aug. 23.

The Canadian News Steamship Company's steamer Anglo-Saxon, arrived in this port this morning, with the mails and passengers from Liverpool, via Londonderry.

The Anglo-Saxon left Londonderry at 1 P. M. on Saturday, the 15th inst., and has consequently been four days and eight hours on the passage.

Owing to an accident on shore, the steamer was detained for nearly two days at Londonderry, and was thereby prevented from leaving on the day originally fixed, from Tuesday, the 11th inst., to Friday, the 14th instant. She was detained from Wednesday to Saturday, Aug. 19, A PROOF SHEET OF THE TIMES

"The work of laying down the Atlantic cable is going on as successfully as the most sanguine could desire. Up to the present time over 300 miles of the cable have been laid. The depth of the water into which it is now being submerged is nearly two miles. The laying of this cable from the shallow to the deep water was effected without difficulty.

The signals from on board the steamer Niagara are everything that an anxious world could desire. The steamer are heading West with a northerly inclination, and the cable is being run out from on board the Niagara at the rate of about five miles per hour, and messages are being constantly received on board.

The following is the latest dash from on board the Niagara:

"All well on board. Steamer steadily ahead. All more and more delighted at progress made."

The steamship Tuscarora, from New York, on Saturday, August 1, arrived at Londonderry on Tuesday, the 11th, and our despatch dated and stated the exact hour. The passage, however, is called eight days and thirteen hours exact time.

The Galway steamer Athenia, which sailed from New-York at the same time with the Tuscarora (5 o'clock P. M., August 1) arrived at Liverpool at 10 o'clock, midnight, on the 11th.

The steamship City of Washington sailed from Liverpool for New-York at noon on the 12th inst., and the steamer General Williams, in place of the steamer Arctic (taken up by the Government for the Baltic), was advertised to leave the same afternoon for St. John's, Newfoundland, Halifax and Portland.

The steamship North Star, from Rosyth, old Scotland, was also appointed to sail for New-York on the afternoon of the 12th inst.

Lord Joun Russell had reported, from the Parliamentary Select Committee, that the Jews could not be admitted as members of Parliament, unless some existing Act for the modification of oaths.

Lord Palmerston explained to the House of Commons the difficulties with France, with regard to the Moldavian elections, and stated that, at last news, the conference at Odessa, to superintend the Polish to cancel the late election. Lord Palmerston also stated that there had been differences between the English and French Governments relative to the Principalities—and as to their union, but simply as to the regularity of the elections.

"There was good reason to believe that Austria would concur with the decision arrived at between the French and English Governments, and that the Italians, seeing that there was nothing in the measure recommended, that would compromise its dignity or independence, would adopt their views with which the Congress told.

Lord Palmerston said there was no ground to apprehend any misunderstanding between Russia and England on account of the Moldavian difficulties.

A spirited debate had taken place in Parliament in regard to affairs in India. Lord Palmerston stated that thirty thousand troops had been sent out, and that active recruiting was going on. Mr. Disraeli expressed the opinion that the campaign for this year was lost.

The Emperor and Empress of France had returned safely to Paris.

Louis Kossuth had been returned to Parliament from Birmingham without opposition.

The trial of Smeaton for the murder of Mr. Lamson, of Dublin, resulted in his acquittal.

A despatch from Vienna states that the representatives of France, Russia, Prussia and Sardinia have announced in notes couched in pacific terms, the cessation of diplomatic relations with the Porte, and their withdrawal from the Turkish capital. The Russian Ambassador left Constantinople on the 8th inst. The Porte correspondent of the London Times says that the recalling of the ambassadors to Moldavia will be interpreted by subjects, to a preference of the representatives of their ruling power to themselves.

Later dates have been momentarily expected when the Anglo-Saxon sailed.

The Liverpool Papers, under date of Saturday, August 1, arrived at Londonderry on Tuesday, the 11th, and our despatch dated and stated the exact hour. The passage, however, is called eight days and thirteen hours exact time.

VIOLENCE AND CRIME.

Dangerous Assault—A Gentleman Terrorized.

About 6¼ P. M. Saturday, James Mooney, of Twenty-sixth-street, and Constitution Dance Hall, Wednesday night Mooney was attacked by Oliver Richards, of Twenty-seventh-street, near Thirtieth-street, and James Keay, on complaint of Dr. Goulter. It appears on Wednesday night Mooney was attacked by Mr. Richards, who he was acquainted to go into the public house. Moonney refused to do so, and Richards struck him a violent blow on the face. Keay coming to the assistance of Richards, Moonney was struck by him. Moonney, who is a powerful man, then turned upon Keay, and gave him a severe beating. Richards, seeing Keay down, left the house, and Moonney, who was bleeding profusely from the mouth, followed him into the street, where he was attacked by Richards, who struck him a violent blow on the face, and then ran away. The prisoners were arrested by Officer Richards, and Moonney was taken to his residence, Constitution Dance Hall, and attended by Dr. Goulter. It appears that Moonney, when he was accosted in the street, was walking quietly along, and was not in any way provoked to commit the assault. Moonney is a powerful man, and is well known in the district as a pugilist. The prisoners were remanded.

Probable Fatal Stabbing Affray in Broadway.

A man named James Smith, of Sedgwick Night-lodgers, was brought up by Officer Richards, charged with having on Saturday night, between 11 and 12 o'clock, was so severely stabbed in Broadway, by two Germans, named Klaus Wienerki and Fabian Lemmerz, at the corner of Gold and Canal-streets, that serious results are apprehended. About the hour above-named the prisoners, who had been drinking at the "Blue House," Canal-street, had a quarrel with James Smith, who was passing by, and attacked him with knives, inflicting several wounds, one of which, in the left side, penetrated the lung. Smith was conveyed to the Hospital, where he now lies in a very precarious state. The prisoners were remanded.

Fatal Accident.

We find that the deceased came to his death from injuries received by the falling of a portion of the ceiling of the "City Arms" Hotel, Broadway, by which he was struck on the head. Mr. Kane, the coroner, was communicated with, and he at once proceeded to the hotel, where he found the deceased lying on a mattress on the floor of the bar-room, surrounded by a number of persons. He did not remove the body, as he considered it unnecessary to do so until he had viewed it in the position in which he found it. Mr. Kane, after viewing the body, ordered it to be removed to the Dead-house, Mulberry-street, where a post mortem examination will be held this day at 2 o'clock.
